

September 30, 2026

To Whom It May Concern,

It is my pleasure to write this letter of recommendation for Xhoana, who worked as a Product Analyst on my team within the Global Ethics Office IT for approximately 4+ years. I had the privilege of directly managing her throughout that time, and I can say without reservation that she is one of the strongest analysts and team players I have worked with. Xhoana joined our team fresh out of college, supporting our investigations oversight unit on the technology side. What stood out immediately was how quickly she grasped complex, unfamiliar material — she had a rare ability to understand what needed to be done almost as soon as it was explained, even in a domain as intricate as ours, which spans regulatory investigations, case management systems, and compliance technology.

Over her four years with us, Xhoana's responsibilities grew substantially. She began by taking on smaller, well-defined tasks, which she consistently completed quickly and reliably. As her understanding of our systems and processes deepened, she moved into a much more strategic role — evaluating business requirements, proposing solutions, and driving process refinement across several of our most important initiatives. She played a key role in our NAVEX SaaS implementation, and she was instrumental in refining critical process blockers in integrations with (SNOW, Navex systems) — work that involved time-sensitive matters where delays could have had real operational consequences. Her creativity in finding straightforward solutions to genuinely complex problems made her someone the team could always count on.

Beyond her technical and analytical abilities, Xhoana is, without exaggeration, one of the best team players I have encountered. She collaborates naturally and effectively with people across all levels and functions, and her communication is consistently clear, thoughtful, and impactful — a skill that made her especially effective when working with both technical teams and business stakeholders who didn't share her technical background.

Xhoana's departure from our team was solely the result of a budget-driven reduction, and had nothing whatsoever to do with her performance, which was consistently excellent throughout her tenure. I have no doubt she will bring the same speed, creativity, and collaborative spirit to any organization fortunate enough to hire her.

I recommend Xhoana without reservation and am happy to be contacted directly for any further detail.

Sincerely,

Raghuveer Gaddam

VP, Compliance & Legal Technology at Citi

201-647-5722